JENNIFER WETZEL
REGIONAL COORDINATOR

Welcome to Future City Philadelphia! Imagine a future where no one goes hungry because we learned to optimize food production, delivery, and disposal throughout the world. Our competitors have – and I'm excited to see today how the engineers of the future have designed their cities with an emphasis on Farm to Table. We are excited to have teams from all over the Philadelphia Region join us today at Archbishop Carroll. Thanks to our many sponsors, hundreds of volunteers, and our dedicated Steering Committee for making this competition a reality.

FINAL JUDGES

Candice Lawton

Candice Lawton is a circular economy leader with more than a decade of experience driving sustainability and systems change at the intersection of business, community, and the environment. She is currently the Executive Director of Circular Philadelphia (<https://circularphiladelphia.org/>) which brings together individuals, businesses, manufacturers, institutions, local government, and policy makers to lead the shift to a circular economy in the region. She has held senior leadership roles at pioneering circular economy organizations like TerraCycle and rePurpose Global and led the Community Partnerships team at Philabundance, where she managed a network of more than 350 partners distributing rescued and surplus food across the region. She regularly speaks on industry podcasts and at leading events including Sustainability in Packaging, Sustainable Brands and Trellis. She serves on the board of the Arrupe Center for Business Ethics at St. Joseph's University and is also a board member of Campus Race to Zero Waste, a nationwide initiative that supports waste reduction and circular practices on college campuses.

Chef Edmund "Eddie" Konrad

Chef Edmund "Eddie" Konrad is a Philadelphia-born chef whose fine-dining pedigree shapes the culinary voice of Messina Club in South Philadelphia. Eddie was born and raised in Philadelphia where he attended Mercy Vocational High School and studied culinary arts. He realized at a young age that being in the kitchen made him feel like he was finally a part of something. He trained in rigorous kitchens up and down the East Coast—Learning at institutions like Le Bec-Fin in Philadelphia and Del Posto in New York—before returning home as chef de cuisine at Laurel, and can now be found heading the acclaimed kitchen at Messina Social Club. If you recognize Eddie, you remember him as a fan favorite on Top Chef (Season 16), where his craftsmanship and straight-ahead style stood out. In Philadelphia, he became widely known for elegant, seasonally driven tasting menus and exacting technique. He has always strived to improve his own skills as well as provide an educational environment for his fellow chefs and employees. As a father, Eddie is a natural teacher and mentor to those who work around him. His focus on creating experiences for his guests is always at the core of his culinary work.

Regine Metellus

Regine oversees The Food Trust's Finance and Human Resources functions. An industry veteran who was named Philadelphia Business Journal CFO of the Year in 2008 (Small Nonprofit category), Regine brings more than 30 years of experience in accounting, business development, strategy and operations. Prior to joining The Food Trust, she served in leadership positions at several venerable Philadelphia institutions, including the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the University of Pennsylvania and the Urban League of Philadelphia. Regine is skilled at managing large budgets, shepherding key stakeholder relationships, and transforming internal policies and processes—all with a goal toward organizational integrity, sustainability and growth. Regine holds a bachelor's degree in accounting from Boston College and Master of Business Administration from Temple University.

Debbie Rivette

Debbie Rivette serves as Senior Team Leader of Produce Operations for Whole Foods Market's Northeast Area, overseeing 105 produce departments. A 22-year veteran of the natural foods industry, she specializes in produce procurement and product merchandising. She is committed to excellence in product assortment and quality, supporting local growers, and championing sustainability while delivering an exceptional customer experience. In addition to daily operations, she plays a key role in new store development, relocations, and renovations.
